

MRS. GARDNER'S OIL PAINTINGS SUE

Uncle Sam Begins Action for Forfeiture of Works of Art.

SAID TO HAVE BEEN SMUGGLED

They Have Already Cost Mrs.
Emily Chadbourne
$70,409.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—The United States of America vs. Two Oil Paintings et al." is the title of a suit filed by the Government for the forfeiture of works of art belonging to Mrs. "Jack" Gardner, of Boston, and said to have been smuggled into the United States by Mrs. Emily Crane Chadbourne, of Chicago.

The filing of the suit in the Federal Court brought to light figures which indicate that unsuccessful smuggling is a costly adventure. When Mrs. Chadbourne brought Mrs. Gardner's art treasures into the United States from England last summer she listed them at the Custom-House as "household effects" roughly valued at $8,000. An appraiser in Chicago placed their value at $82,411.

Mrs. Chadbourne was compelled to pay the regular duty on this valuation, amounting to $29,203, and a penalty of $11,205, a total of $70,409. This gave her no right to the property. If she wishes to regain that she must still pay the appraised value of the shipments, $82,411.

To Go Under Hammer.

No move in this direction, it is said, has been made by either Mrs. Chadbourne or Mrs. Gardner, and in the course of a few weeks it is regarded as probable that an Italian Madonna, several tapestries of ancient and cunning make and other articles of vertu will go under the auctioneer's hammer to the highest bidder.

Mrs. Gardner, whose enthusiasm as an art collector has made her known on two continents, and Mrs. Chadbourne, a member of the wealthy Crane family of Chicago, met in Paris. When Mrs. Gardner decided to return to America she turned a lot of her art treasures over to Mrs. Chadbourne. The latter, transferring her residence to England, used them in decorating her new home.

When she, in turn, started for her native land, she decided to bring back with her the valuables entrusted to her by Mrs. Gardner, with the purpose of turning them over to their owner.

When the case came to light friends of Mrs. Chadbourne declared that, ignorant of business and legal technicalities, Mrs. Chadbourne actually believed that the works of art, having been used in her house for decorative purposes, really were household effects.

DECLARES WOMEN HAVE "DETERIORATED"

Not Like Those of Colonial Days, Says
Dr. Leavill.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 1.—Women should not copy men in dress, manner or ideas, but should be like the women of colonial days, who could sew, cook and care for the home and who had an abiding faith in their husbands, declared the Rev. William Hayes Leavill, D. D., president of Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., in his address at the banquet of the Society of Colonial Wars at the Southern Hotel.

"Few women of today," he said, "would leave their homes, their friends and all the attractions of life to follow their husbands into a foreign land as did the women of colonial days. Modern influences have had a deteriorating effect on women; they have destroyed much of the attractiveness of women."

"The home is the place for women unless it is absolutely necessary for them to leave it. I do not believe any woman should enter the field of business and take a man's place unless conditions require that she should do so. I am not a believer in woman's rights as woman's rights are known today."

ATHLETIC BABY USES DUMB BELLS

Lifts Himself Up and Down
On Trapeze Just For Fun.

DETROIT, Dec. 1.—Otto Huck, proprietor of Schiller Hall, is the proud father of an athletic son, who at the age of 18 months is able to exercise with two-pound dumb bells.

The little fellow's muscles are already remarkably well developed.

"I feel that in order to raise a child that will be sound in mind, it is essential to give him an opportunity to develop physically," said Mr. Huck, who has been a member of the Detroit Social Turnverein for 16 years, and a great enthusiast for weight-lifting exercises.

"My little son now takes these exercises several times every day, about 15 or 20 minutes at a time, just as he happens to feel like doing. I don't believe in crowding a child in the matter of physical exercise, but to make it so that he will get a lot of fun out of it. I have a little trapeze that he uses in lifting himself up and this develops the muscles of the shoulders, back and arms."

HAYTI REVOLUTIONISTS TO OVERTHROW ALEXIS

Port au Prince Probably Will Be Captured by 5,000 Rebels.

By United Press.
PORT AU PRINCE, Hayti, Dec. 1.—General Simon's revolutionary army is expected before the city this evening. The army numbers 5,000. The battle which will decide the fate of President Alexis is expected soon. Gen. Andree commands the government troops, which are situated six miles from the city awaiting Simon's coming.

Rebel victories have caused wholesale desertions from the government forces. Many residents are fleeing from the city. All the jewels and valuables in the city are being hidden in anticipation of Alexis' overthrow. It is expected that the United States will interfere if the rebels win a decisive victory.

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1.—Haytian dispatches indicate that the revolutionists will capture Port au Prince and overthrow President Alexis within twenty-four hours.

DEMAND FOR GOLD COINS

Philadelphia Mint Coining $500,000
Worth a Day.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1.—Five hundred thousand dollars in gold are being coined every day at the mint here to meet the demand which has already set in for the yellow pieces for Christmas gifts. There is an unprecedented early and heavy call for Christmas coins. To meet the demand Superintendent Landis has taken on twenty extra adjusters. Each day orders from subtreasuries all over the country have become larger, and within a week almost twice as many of the coins will be turned out by the mint presses.

"There is every reason to believe," says Superintendent Landis, "that the demand will continue right up to Christmas."

from neglecting their studies, so they will not be disqualified; let every one interested begin now to prepare for next year; let those who look forward to making the "Varsity" next year realize that you will not go back on them and utter complaints if perchance they are not victorious; let us have if necessary more coaching but let us keep the coaches who have in the last year or two made good and successful football possible, and who have taken such splendid care of our players and let us continue to have gentlemen and not pugilists in charge of our teams; let us have this student body act as one man in defense of what is fair and manly and in support of real sportsmanship, and I am confident victory will likewise come to us."

Mandolin Club Plays.

The University Mandolin Club appeared at Assembly for the first time this year. Eight members took part, four being out of the city. The club is preparing to go with the Glee Club in February on the annual tour of the state. Their program this morning consisted of five numbers, which were well received by the audience.

The rest of the program consisted of a piano solo by Miss Ramsay, a tenor solo by W. L. Ustick, a violin solo by L. G. Ross and a piano solo by W. T. Stickney. All of the selections won applause.

FAMILY ROW OVER MOTHER'S BURIAL

Rival Undertakers Called by Children and the Police
Attend Corpse.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 1.—A family row that led to the very edge of the grave, necessitating the presence of peace officers at the funeral, was the spectacle seen here when rival undertakers fought to perform the last offices for Mrs. J. T. Cromwell.

Her oldest daughter, Mrs. J. C. Twitchell, engaged E. E. Erickson as undertaker, while the youngest son of the dead woman engaged Edward Holman, another funeral director.

The physician, a relative of Mrs. Twitchell, refused to issue a death certificate to Holman, who had secured possession of the remains. The city health officers were called in, but declined to issue a death certificate unless an autopsy was performed.

Mrs. Twitchell had a strong interview with Holman, and is said to have threatened his life. A warrant charging her with insanity was issued, and she found it necessary to remain away from the funeral.

Three city police officers attended the obsequies of the aged woman to prevent a conflict between members of the family.

WESTMINSTER NO ABBEY

Lecturer Corrects Beliefs About Two Historic Places.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—To be told that Westminster Abbey is not an abbey and that Lambeth Palace is not a palace will startle most Americans who have made pilgrimages to those historic buildings. In a lecture, John McIntosh Fellow, of the Royal Photographic Society, has declared that the one should properly be called the Collegiate Church at Westminster, and the other the Manor House of Lambeth.
